

4th Ajyal Youth Film Festival opens on a powerful note with the message of films for positive change

Doha, Qatar; November 30, 2016: The fourth Ajyal Youth Film Festival, presented by the Doha Film Institute, kicked off on a powerful note with a red carpet ceremony to mark the screening of the inspiring Kazakh film, The Eagle Huntress (Mongolia, UK, USA/ 2016), and a call to draw on the power of films to drive positive social change.

Fatma Al Remaili, Festival Director and Chief Executive Officer of Doha Film Institute, welcomed guests from around the world, including over 550 young Ajyal Jurors from 10 countries.

She said: “Films remind us that we are part of a universe bigger than ourselves. By instilling an understanding of the world and its realities, through films, we prepare our young people for the future. Our young jurors breathe life into this community event. By embracing the festival and bringing their positive energy to it, they also inspire us to better ourselves every year.”

Fatma Al Remaili said that Ajyal serves a bigger purpose to the society. “With Ajyal, we engage our youth through compelling and meaningful films, enhancing awareness of the world around them, and inspiring them to see humanity from fresh perspectives. That is why we have curated a diverse selection of films this year that talk about social issues that touch young people globally.

“Each film reflects our time and space, and even when discussing disturbing subjects, they rekindle hope and restore confidence in humanity. These filmmakers have gone great lengths to accomplish their dreams, and they do us a service by opening up new horizons. Even though doing so is sometimes uncomfortable and challenging, they urge us to take simple yet meaningful steps that leave behind a positive legacy.”

This year, Ajyal has a carefully curated selection of 70 films from 33 countries that address issues ranging from women empowerment to the global displacement crisis, the loss of loved ones, financial dependence, separation and every day struggles. These are presented with an underlying spirit of optimism and hope that will warm the hearts of the viewers.
